

Our unit of inquiry

Families' histories can enable people to discover cultural origins.

You might like to join in our learning by...

- Creating your own family tree or choose someone famous and find out about their family tree.
- Painting or drawing a picture of your family.
- Looking at some of your features. Find out who in your family shares your features. Make a poster with you in the centre and your family members around the edge.
- Finding out about some British traditions – you could even visit the British Museum.
- Finding out about The Skinners' Company and the cultural heritage of our school.
- Learning how to cook a meal from your cultural heritage. Take a photograph and bring the recipe to school to share with everyone.
- Researching the Royal family and their history. You could even take a trip to London and visit Buckingham Palace.
- Finding out about the different capital cities around the world. What are their cultural traditions?

SKINNERS' KENT
PRIMARY SCHOOL

Term 6

We are going to enrich our learning by...

- Making sure we keep ourselves and our families healthy by learning about exercise and healthy eating.
- Identifying and naming human body parts and their functions.
- Comparing ourselves with our family members, thinking about who we get different features and traits from.
- Looking at British traditions and making some traditional British food.
- Finding out about the Royal family and looking at a timeline of monarchs.
- Learning about the life of the Queen and recording our findings in fact files or biographies.
- Finding out about other cultures that are represented in our school, learning about similarities and differences in food, clothing, music and stories.
- Looking at different capital cities around the world and locating these on a map.
